

Kong Mou Sum Library

NEWSLETTER

EBSCOhost Search Competition

EBSCO, provider of the EBSCOhost databases for the Library, is currently holding a search competition to promote the use of their journal databases in conducting literature review for academic research. To join the competition, participants should complete the three search prompts related to academic studies on depression by uploading relevant full-text search results from the EBSCOhost databases. Prizes will be awarded to winners of a lucky draw among qualified submissions.

The competition is open to all students and faculty members of the College and will close on 31st December 2020. More details on the competition are available at this link.

organised by

EBSCO
INFORMATION SERVICES

Details

QR Code

Eligibility
All students and faculty members

Deadline
31st December 2020

Winner Announcement
10th January 2021

EBSCO
"What is Depression?"
Search Competition

Put your research skills into test:
respond to three research prompts by uploading full-text search results from the EBSCOhost databases for a chance to win a prize –

- APPLE Watch SE GPS (40 mm)
- MERESOY Pocket Massage Gun
- DEFUNC True Go Slim Headphone

royalty-free image from pexels.com

Book Recommendations Area

A 'Book Recommendations' area has recently been introduced at the Library, located on top of the New Additions shelves. These items are selected on display for a two-week period and can be read inside the library. As per usual, items on the New Additions shelves can be borrowed, for which renewal is not applicable.

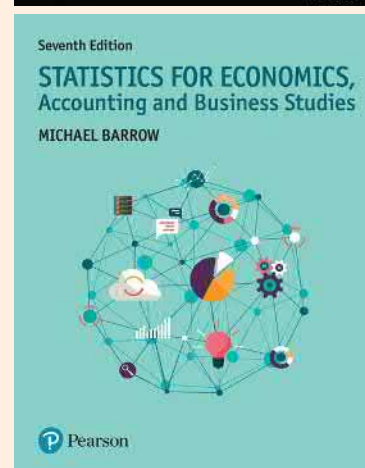

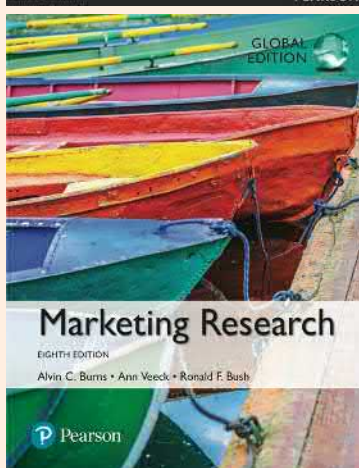

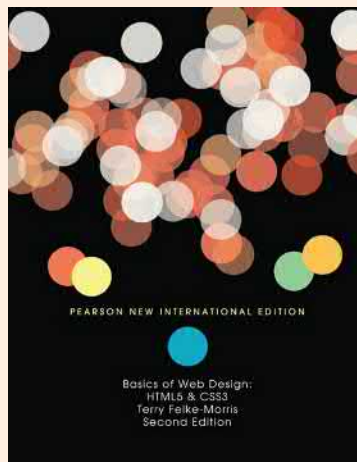

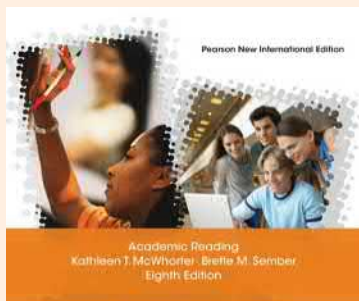

E-resources highlight - Pearson

Pearson offers full-text access to electronic textbooks on a wide range of subjects. With the majority of the collection designated for introductory level, browsing these textbooks can be an excellent opportunity to explore career and further studies options. General readings on college-level academic writing, numerical competence, and research methodology are also ideal resources for learning support. Below are examples of textbook titles available at Pearson:

Pearson offers full-text access to electronic textbooks on a wide range of subjects. With the majority of the collection designated for introductory level, browsing these textbooks can be an excellent opportunity to explore career and further studies options. General readings on college-level academic writing, numerical competence, and research methodology are also ideal resources for learning support.

royalty-free image from pexels.com

Resources highlight - Architectural Review

As a leading international architectural magazine with over 120 years of history, The Architectural Review aims at raising awareness on the intersections of contemporary socio-political issues and architectural practices. Each volume comprises a different mix of genres, such as photo essays, case studies, and personalised story-telling. The monthly publication is complemented by its website with content updated daily.

Subject Guide: Architecture

The Library is pleased to launch a subject guide for Architecture, a one-stop point dedicated to facilitating academic and research activities. Databases of relevant journals and theses, as well as a directory of websites for professional career development, are compiled in this subject guide. Subject-specific guidance on perusing physical and electronic resources of the College Library is also provided, so as to enhance the learning experience of Architecture students through facilitating their strategic use of library resources.

For enquiries and assistance, please contact the Library at infolib@chuhai.edu.hk or 2972 7332 during opening hours.